My dear Sir M. Visvesvaraya,

The following instructions have recently been issued by the Army Council at the War Office:-

"It has been brought to notice that Regimental Journals and Magazines frequently contain information regarding the movements actions, and situations of battalions whcih would be of great value to the enemy if it came into his possession. With a view to minimising this danger, it is notified that no record of the above nature in regard to an event that has occurred within six months of the date of publication should, in future be included in Regimental Journals and Magazines".

I am to request that, if there be no objection, this may be kindly communicated to editors of newspapers as an indication of the period that should be allowed to elapse before definite information of this kind giving the names of the units engaged is published.

Yrs sincerely

J. S. G. Fraser.
